KAMEHAMEHA DAY EVENTS ARE READY

mehehameha, Hui Kaahumanu, Hui Kamehameha, Hui O'iwi Kane, Hui O'iwi Wahine, Court Lunallilo, Hui Poola Wahine, Hui Poola Kane and Hui Manawalea on a Mamona. Other organizations which will be in line are Phoenix Lodge, Young People's League, Boy Scouts, "The Queen's Own," and Iolani school. An earnest invitation has been extended to the societies to take part in the parade. Every member of each society is requested to be in full uniform. The line of march will be from Ala Park along King street to the executive building, where the parade will wind its way around the statue of Kamehameha and thence to the palace grounds.

Halt at Statue.
When the head of the parade reaches the statue, a brief halt will be made, and the statue unveiled by George Beckley, representing the Chiefs of Hawaii.

A brief tableau will be enacted there, bringing out the first law which Kamehameha the Great made. The characters will be an old man, an old woman and a little child, for the story goes that, when the Great King once attempted to pierce a boatload of sh which some of his followers had just brought in from the sea, the shermen resented his actions and he was struck on the head by one of them. When the fisherman who made the assault was brought before the king, he was asked why he had struck his ruler. The man answered that Kamehameha was king only in name; that he furnished no protection for his people. The man was allowed to go, and Kamehameha then made his first law: That any old man or old woman or little child found resting beside the road should be left unmolested, and that property should be safe.

The parade will enter the mauka entrance of the palace grounds and, turning to the left, the members of the various organizations in line will take seats around the bandstand. The steps of the palace will be occupied by the members of the Hui Ka Hale o Na Alii o Hawaii, who will be grouped around Kukailimoku, Kamehameha's war god. Following the seating of the society members and the guests, the Daughters of Warriors will proceed from the basement of the palace to the bandstand where a series of tableaux will be presented. These tableaux will depict the surrender to King Kamehameha of the chiefs of the islands of Hawaii, Kahoolawe, Maui, Lanai, Molokai and Oahu, which islands were conquered by him in the order named. The method of surrender will consist of the presentation to the great king of the royal kahili, the ancient emblem of the rank of each petty chieftain. Unique and correct costumes have been prepared for the participants in each tableau, and the whole will form a spectacle which will long be remembered.

Kamehameha's young days will thus be commemorated by the Daughters of Warriors.

Feature is Pageant.
The feature of the celebration will be the pageant at the Public Baths at Waikiki, which will begin promptly at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon, and which will depict the cession of the kingdom of Kauai to Kamehameha I. Hawaiians to the number of more than 500 have been secured to take part in this spectacle. As the story goes, Kamehameha, after he had defeated the king of Oahu at the Paoli, announced his intention of conquering Kauai. When the news reached the king of Kauai, he consulted with his followers and decided that, instead of giving battle, he would come to Oahu and swear allegiance to the great king. He then sent envoys to Oahu to announce that his visit was a friendly one. The pageant tomorrow afternoon will depict the meeting of the two kings, and will be presented in five scenes.

The first scene will show Kaahumanu, Kamehameha's beloved queen, approaching her royal pavilion in company with her high chiefs and retainers. Presiding here is the marshal with his staff of office, followed by the kahili bearers and the chanter, reciting the queen's mele of genealogy. The scene comes to a close with the queen resting on her couch, surrounded by three young princesses, the high chiefs and attendants.

The second scene shows Kamehameha approaching his pavilion in company with his attendants. He is preceded by the marshal and high priests, and followed by the high chiefs of his own court; conquered chiefs of Hawaii, Maui, Oahu and the other islands; warrior chiefs, bearing spears; officers bearing kahilis and personal attendants. These are the kua kahili, or standard bearer; the paa ipukuha, or cuspidor bearer; the muki paka, or pipe bearer; and the pale kuli a haula poo, or sleeping attendants.

The attendants, bearing small kahilis, take position around a hikiae, or couch, on which Kamehameha seats himself. The arrival of the consort from Kauai will be shown in scene three. Kamehameha proceeds to the shore to welcome the chief of Kauai, accompanied by his kahili bearers, attendants and priests. He greets the Kauai king and together they return to Kamehameha's pavilion. While on their way to the great king's pavilion, the Kauai chanter recites the genealogy of his king.

Scene four shows the two kings seated on the royal hikiae, and the king of Kauai reciting the object of his mission to cede Kauai to Kamehameha. The last scene shows the two kings being received in state by Queen Kaahumanu in her pavilion.

CHINESE WILL GIVE CONCERT THIS EVENING

A benefit entertainment for the Chinese Athletic Union, the live local organization that has fostered baseball and other clean sports for the Chinese in Hawaii, will be given this evening at Phoenix hall, formerly the Moose hall.

A concert program, opening promptly at 8 o'clock, will be Part 1 of the evening's entertainment. Part 2 will consist of dancing, to be started about 9:30. John C. Anderson will be floor manager.

Dancing—Ten regular and four extra dances.

AMERICAN COMPOSERS WILL BE A FEATURE

In her selection of the numbers she will render at the farewell concert arranged for the night of June 12 at the Opera House, Mrs. Bessie Abbott Howland has been partial to American composers. Two of her favorites are Cadman and MacDermid and of the former's works she will interpret two sections from his great cycle of American Indian songs, "From the Land of the Sky Blue Waters" and "When the Moon Drops Low." These Indian compositions have created a furore on the mainland and are destined to make their author world famous. From MacDermid's compositions Mrs. Howland has selected "Fulfillment," "Sacrament" and "My Love is Like the Red, Red Rose." Other numbers to be rendered by Mrs. Howland are the "Prelude" and "Summer" from "Ronald's Cycle of Life" and also the "Song of Thanksgiving" by Alliston. All these numbers are fittingly suited to Mrs. Howland's magnificent soprano voice.

Equally happy selections have been made by John Gifford, Florence Bocco Johnson and Mrs. L. Tenney Peck and the concert should prove a treat for those who attend. Tickets are now on sale at the rooms of the Promotion Committee in the Young Hotel building.

Pay of Parliaments

Italy and Spain are the only European countries which offer no monetary reward to their members of Parliament. The Portuguese legislators are not remunerated by the state, but they have a free pass for traveling on all railways in the country, and their constituencies are permitted to pay a sum equivalent to 15 shillings for each day's sitting.

Denmark is another country which believes that its political gentlemen are ready to work for almost nothing. Members of Parliament there only receive six shillings per day, but they have the peculiar privilege of a free seat in the Royal Theater in Copenhagen.

The Norwegian honorable member is thankful for a daily income of 12 shillings, though he must do his duty properly to get it. He loses a day's pay when he takes a day off. Members of the Swiss Diet work under the same threat. If they are absent they lose salary which amounts in their case to 16 shillings per day.

Rumania pays her lawmakers a sovereign per day, and Bulgaria offers 16 shillings. In the latter country, members living in the capital have four shillings deducted, because they have no train fares to pay, and only one home to keep up. Hungary treats her statesmen just half as well as England does, allowing them £200 per annum. They have, however, a liberal allowance for house rent, and can travel first class with second class tickets—London Tit Bits.

A dance will be given by Company D this evening in the Armory at 8:30 o'clock. The members of the University of California baseball team are to occupy a special box, and will be the guests of the company for the evening. All friends of the company are invited to attend.

The man who poses as a social lion among women may stack up like a yellow cur among real men.

Scene five concludes the pageant. Ball Closes Day.

The celebration will come to a close with a grand ball in the National Guard armory, beginning at 8 o'clock in the evening.

By special invitation, the following persons have been asked to attend the pageant and other events of the celebration as guests of honor:

Queen Liliuokalani, Delegate and Princess Kalaniana'ole, Governor L. E. Pinkham, Chief Justice and Mrs. A. G. M. Robertson, President of the Senate and Mrs. E. A. Knudsen (absent), H. L. Holstein, speaker of the house; Brig. Gen. W. H. Carter, staff and ladies; Rear-admiral C. B. T. Moore, staff and ladies; Adj. Gen. J. W. Jones, N. G. H., staff and ladies; Mr. and Mrs. James D. Dougherty, Mayor and Mrs. J. J. Fern, Hon. Elizabeth Kaiaua Pratt, Judge and Mrs. Sanford B. Dole, Hon. and Mrs. G. R. Carter, Hon. and Mrs. Walter F. Frear. The members of the local consular corps and their ladies are included in the list.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

Jordan's will be closed all day Thursday, June 11, Kamehameha Day.

The territorial schools will close for the summer vacation on June 26 and will reopen for the new school year on September 15.

Word has been received here of the death of M. Jules Ratard, former consul for France in Hawaii. His wife is a sister of Mrs. L. G. Blackman and of R. W. T. Purvis, of Kauai.

There will be a meeting of the St. Louis College Alumni Association on Friday night at half-past seven o'clock for the purpose of making nominations for officers for the coming term.

The action brought by Emma Strickland against Mrs. Hannah Palmer was discontinued today. The action was a civil one brought in the circuit court. It was stated that a satisfactory settlement had been reached by the parties.

Ellen C. Kaahini was given a decree of divorce from Daniel P. Kaahini today on the ground of extreme cruelty. The divorce was granted by Judge Whitney, who awarded the custody of one child to the father, the other to the mother.

All who are tired and weary in spirit are invited to a special song and prayer service to be held at the Methodist Church tonight at seven-thirty o'clock. Mission Worker John Martin and Deacon R. H. Trent will conduct the services. Townsfolk and visitors in the city will be given a hearty welcome.

Honolulu Lodge No. 1, Modern Order of Phoenix, will be well represented in the Kamehameha Day celebration parade tomorrow if all of the 200 members who have signified their intention of taking part answer the roll call. Tomorrow will be the first time that the handsome new banner of the order will be officially used.

Elder Daniels, who has been making a tour around the world, gave an interesting account of his travels at the Seventh Day Adventist Church last night. A large and interested audience was present to meet the distinguished traveler. Elder Daniels will depart for Australia on June 17 by the steamer Marama.

ANOTHER "NOT GUILTY" VERDICT IN U. S. COURT

After being out but 10 minutes, the jury in the case of Remundo Reyes, a Porto Rican charged with assault with a deadly weapon on the military reservation at Lalehua, yesterday returned a verdict of not guilty. Testimony was given which tended to prove that the alleged assault took place on the reservation, but the testimony of those who are said to have been witnesses of the affair was not sufficient to convince the jury of the Porto Rican's guilt.

Civilization and Fauna

Nothing but the isolation given by a wide sea or high mountain ranges will preserve a primeval fauna and flora—the indigenous man-free living denizens of the isolated region—from destruction by the necessary unpremeditated disturbance of nature's balance by man once he has passed from the lowest stage of savagery. At present we are faced by this difficulty in Africa. Not only the white settlers have large herds of cattle, but before their arrival the negro natives had imported Indian cattle. These cattle are destroyed by "fly disease," the germs (trypanosomes) being carried to the domesticated cattle from wild buffalo and antelopes, which swarm with the germs, but are uninjured by them. Consequently, if the rich pasture lands of Africa, at present unutilized, are to be occupied by herdsmen the wild game buffalo and antelopes must be destroyed. In many regions they have been destroyed. Is this destruction to be continued? If Africa is to be the seat of a modern human population and supply food to other parts of the world the whole "balance of nature" there must be upset and the wild big animals destroyed. There is no alternative. The practical question is, How far is it possible to mitigate this process? Can a great African reserve of 100,000 square miles be established in a position so isolated that it shall not be a source of disease and danger to the herdsmen and agriculturists of adjacent territory?—Sir Ray Lankester, in London Telegraph.

Easing the Miners' Work

A combined electrically operated coal-cutting and loading machine has been developed recently, the use of which will lessen the hardship on miners who have heretofore been required to lie in a cramped position on their backs or sides while wielding a pick in the extraction of coal from a vein. The new device consists in general of an undercutting chain, two vertical sheering chains, a pick, a stationary frame, or pan, on which the cutter head can be fed backward and forward, a receiving conveyor, and separate loading apparatus for lump and slack coal. The apparatus, which operates similarly to the breast machines now employed in some mines, can be placed in any working space and need not be removed until the coal is all worked out.—Electrical World.
